HIGH SCHOOL DANCE

WAS BEST OF THE YEAR

Close to three hundred people thronged into the Masonic Community Hall last Friday for the local high school dance. Pleasure seekers from the whole district were noticed among those present, namely from Contee, Gem, Hussar, Brooks, Chetwynd, and Crowfoot. The students present that they can manage an affair of this kind even more successfully than the more experienced ones.

Bride and groom were played by the guests for the first two hours, the prize for bridge going to Mrs. Bassar and, for what to Mrs. Murdoch.

The Scarier Bonanzas kept things at a fast pace until the early hours of the morning, and it was a reluctant crowd that left the dance hall, even though the weather was fine.

Here's wishing the High School equal success in further ventures in its money-raising schemes.

POPPY DAY VERSE

It sings of mighty conflicts
Fought in air, on land, and flood,
And tells of deeds heroic
That will awe the air the blood;
It whispers of self-sacrifice
Shedding its lovely ray,
And hope that ever brightly
glows
In triumph 'o'er the fray.
Thus for its faithful message
Wear this emblem on your brest!
It will cheer the gallant laddies
Who lived thro' war's cruel test.
To you will come remembrance
Of loved ones gone before,
Who died for this fair land of ours.
Upon a distant shore.

WELL KNOWN PIONEER

PASSES AWAY

George N. Wilson, pioneer of the Bassano district and Civil War Veteran, passed away last Thursday at the Bassano Hospital at the age of 86 years. He had entered hospital two weeks ago for treatment, and though healthy and strong to the last, he succumbed after an arduous and admirable life.

He was born in New York State in the year 1838, fought during the Civil War from 1861 to 1865, and came to Bassano in the spring of 1869. He homesteaded across the Red Deer River, but resided in Bassano most of that time. During the twenty-five years he spent in the district, he became known to both old and young, and established many friends.

Three years ago he purchased a home at 1937, Twenty-sixth street west in Calgary, where he had been living with his son. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Anna M. Wilson, of Calgary; four sons, Charles, of Bassano, Lynn, of Princeton, E. C. Glen, of Edmonton, and Irvine, of Calgary; six grand children, two in Bassano and four in Edmonton.

THE GREATER SACRIFICE

Armistice Day comes around once again to bring back memories of a time not so long past. The four years' incessant fighting was ended, some thirty million men were killed, missing or wounded, and the warring nations had wasted Europe's savings of over a century and buried themselves under a pyramid of debt.

The money cost of the war has been estimated at the tremendous sum of two hundred and fifty billion dollars. Think of the callous waste of wealth the pouring out of that vast treasure meant! The mind rebels at trying to realize the hugeness of such a sum of wealth. What wonderful good for all humanity could have been brought about by the expenditure of such a treasure on the things that would make life nobler, richer and sweeter for all.

But that is not the worst loss. Wealth can be replaced, but lives cannot be restored. Neither can racked body or mind be made whole. The years that would make the great sacrifice "Poured out the red, sweet wine of life; Gave up the years to be of work and joy; And that unhoped serene that men call age; And those who would have been their son They gave—their immortality."

NATIONAL HOLDINGS OF THE WORLD'S GOLD

The total of the world's gold stocks is around 18,500 tons of the yellow metal.

A very few nations hold the bulk of this supply. And they are sticking to it like grim death!

The United States holds the bulk of the world's gold, 7,000 tons of gold locked away in its strong boxes.

Thrifty and materialistic France is second on the list with 4,700 tons. This treasure is safely disposed of in great subterranean fortresses.

Great Britain, forced off gold a couple of years ago, when her supplies diminished almost to the vanishing point, has restored her gold stocks to 1,450 tons.

Spain has 655 tons of gold, Belgium 555 tons, and Italy 500 tons. The remainder is held in smaller lots by the rest of the nations. Germany is almost at the bottom with only 40 tons.

And every nation is trying desperately to get more gold into its coffers.

LISPING THE ALPHABET OF ANNIHILATION!

Eighteen years ago on November 11th the armistice, which was the first step towards ending the Great War, was signed. The world heaved an immense sigh of relief and the peoples of the victorious nations went crazy with joy.

Within a few months of the war's end, the Earl of Asquith said: "The first and most obvious experience of this war is the unexplored and still incalculable effect of harnessing of science to the chariot of destruction. We have seen in these four years only the rudimentary application of methods and agencies unknown and undreamed of in campaigns of the past. Science has in these matters not only said her last word; she is still lispings the alphabet of annihilation."

"If she is to be diverted from her humanizing mission of re-creating our shattered resources and reviving our waste places, and endowing and enriching our common life; if she is to be diverted for another twenty years into the further elaboration of the mechanism and chemistry of destruction; we may as well pray for the speediest possible return of the glacial epoch. "Better a planet on which life has become physically impossible than one in which it has degenerated into a form of organized suicide."

In the light of what has transpired during the past sixteen years it might be well for the world to ponder deeply on the inspired words of a great British statesman.

RAILWAYS MAKING AMBITIOUS PLANS

The railroads are now in the doldrums and have been for the past five years.

The motor truck broke the monopoly held for so many years by the "iron horse." For a while the railroads seemed pitifully defeated. They acted as though they were sick unto death.

Then they woke up. They made the expressions were undertaken with cheap rates offered the public. People dearly love a bargain and how they fell for the cheap trips!

Folks went to the coast or down east on a fraction of the usual charge. They dug up cash they would never have been able to take had the rates not been cheapened.

And now the railways are looking into the future and planning for a busy time. They are out to give fast cheap service if they have to completely re-build their rolling stock in the process.

A short time ago the Union Pacific shot a train of six cars across the continent from New York to Los Angeles in 57 hours with a fuel cost for the whole journey of $80.

The train looked like a caterpillar, with articulated joints between the coaches. It was painted a gleaming yellow with brown body.

Air conditioning kept the coaches at an even temperature through the desert heat and the mountain chill. Every speck of dust was kept out. The engineer wore a suit of white ducks and never even got them spotted.

The railways are planning big surprises for everybody—including themselves.

The railway era has not been finished by any means. In fact it may just be at a beginning.

THE "HURRY UP" BIRDS

The greatest contribution to Alberta's game life was made when the Hungarian partridges were introduced into this province. The little immigrants seemed to like life in Alberta and are settling down and multiplying in fine style.

It cannot be more than fifteen or sixteen years since this game bird was introduced to Alberta's prairies. Now they number myriads and are increasing each year.

Nobody need worry about these little speedsters being brought down in numbers by shooting. In fact they seem to be learning the tricks of the game and are, like the motor cars, putting on a little more speed each year. They are also learning how to "wave" to miss the storm of shot directed towards them.

So it seems likely that we are going to have plenty of Hungarian partridge with us in Alberta for a long time. They are a real asset to bird game life of the province, affording splendid sport, and furnish a most appealing meal.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO.

Thursday, November 8, 1919.

J. B. Prentice left town on Thursday. Requested in pace, and we also.

Robert McLean was a visitor to Calgary over the week-end, returning in time for Chateauque, for which he is an enthusiastic booster.

It seemed just of a kind to find Tommie Sutherland rambling round town again this week, and we hope soon to welcome a few more of our old Majorville friends.

Owing to the absence of A. G. Bond, J. B. Prentice and Jack Allen, the last meeting of the Hospital Trustees was a very barren one.

The "Jonghacks," under whose guarantee Chateauque was brought to Bassano, desire to thank those high browers who so condescendingly patronized, and appeared to thoroughly enjoy, the concert.

A number of our farmers are beginning to prune their features preparatory to their annual flight to the States for the winter. These migratory birds might be persuaded to stay in Bassano if we could offer them something worth staying for during the winter months.

Considering that George Hoadler, Duncan Marshall, Charlie Stewart, Charlie Mitchell—oh yes—and Ed Parcell are all farmers, we have the nucleus of a first class executive for the farmers' government, right to hand.

Bassano is still taking along in the rear of all Victory Loan Districts in Southern Alberta, and seems ridiculously content with its location.

The Ladies Aid of the Presbyterian Church will hold their Annual Chicken Supper in the Church on Wednesday next, November 12th from 6 to 8 o'clock. Price 75c. Every one is assured of a splendid meal, so come, and enjoy the good things provided.

Mr. A. Macmillan of Vancouver, B. C. is visiting her daughter Mrs. T. S. Patton.

PATRICIA NOTES

PATRICIA, Nov. 3.—Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hendrickson, Elie, (over) and Ralph (left) Blaisel were visitors at Medicine Hat last week to see the big leaguers perform. While there, Al Schacht, comedian with the all stars, showed "Lefty" how to throw a "dew-drop."

Miss Viola Stadwiski has come to Lake Lake to attend her brother's wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Irwin entertained a number of their friends at a bridge party last Saturday night.

High scores for the evening were won by Mrs. J. H. Edwards and Laura Tupper, while Mrs. J. Westwick and Stanley Cunningham won the consolation.

There is approximately seven thousand head of lambs on feed in the district.

She (tagging): "Would you like to give ten cents to help the Old Ladies Home?"

He: "Good Heavens! Are they out again?"

DEBILITATION

My harp is crushed
'Neath the wheels of Greed—
My Garden of Hope
Is choked with Weed.
I cannot sing
Tho' the stars invite—
Tho' suns glow golden
I see no light!

To the Plunderer's thirst
I have Paid and Paid—
But the Plunderer's thirst
Is unallayed.

Work of my hands
And Dream of my brain—
All are but dust
'Neath Mammon's train.
Shelter I've builded
Fields I've tilled,
Hopes I've scattered
Like sunlight spilled—
All are crushed—
And swept away—
And the Plunderer still Cries: "Pay! Pay! Pay!"

WEAR A POPPY

It had to come. The government has stepped in and will regulate short selling on the Winnipeg grain exchange. It was proven that large, well-financed outside interests were attempting to break down the wheat prices at the expense of the Canadian farmer and McFarland's price regulating organization. Just why any man should be permitted to sell something he hasn't got or may never be able to get or never want to get, is something our thick brain can't appreciate. In our opinion, if we must have an open grain market, the transactions should be confined to actual wheat in transit or in store. But in the 26 years we have lived in the West we have never seen any logical reason for the open gambling wheat market and have wondered how the industry could survive under it. If Stevens wants to win undying fame in Western Canada he will uncover the case of robbery—barns recently raiding the Canadian wheat market. (Clareholm Local Press.)

EXCHANGE JOKES

Gigolo (gallantly): "Have you this dance?"
Wallflower: "Not yet."
Gigolo: "Please hold this cigarette while I dance."

"I hear you advertised for a wife, any replies?"
"Yes, hundreds."
"Good. What did you say?"
"They all said, 'You can have mine.'"

Bill: "The girl I am married to has a twin sister."
Ben: "How do you tell them apart?"
Bill: "I don't try. It's up to the other one to look out for herself!"

MEANEST MAN IN THE WORLD
Word comes from Millmont that the meanest man in the world has just been discovered.

A scowled hunter and sportsman spotted a large bunch of grouse in a farmer's field and got permission to try and get some.

The farmer's wife caught a team for the hunter but he was unable to get close enough to them, so she caught the cow and the hunter got right amongst them and shot 12.

The lady went out and helped him carry the bunchin, and the hunter very politely loaded the whole bunch, in his car and drove off.

As the lady made it difficult for true sportsmen to get good hunting and came a lot of "No Shooting" signs to be posted.

Scotch Philosopher

The accusations leveled at the learned professors of the University of Alberta by the clergy of Edmonton again remind us that science and religion ever seem at variance. For long, the teachings of Darwin and others were regarded by the church as heresy of the rankiest type, and the use of pain-subduing drugs like morphine, etc., is still viewed by certain religious bodies as being wholly against the will of God. On the other hand, science not infrequently holds up ill-founded facts and suppositions to support its cause, with the result that many people fear its influence on the youth of the land. Perhaps in some more enlightened age, church and science will combine their abundant resources for the purpose of bringing to man a more perfect state of mind and body than he now enjoys.

Writing on the above subject brings to the old farmer recollections of the strange beliefs entertained by man.

We refer to the peculiar idea that the Zulus of Africa have concerning the dead. A great many of this race like to believe that when death overtakes one of their number, he is reincarnated in the form of a snake. Thus when a new reptile is observed in the village, it is regarded by the inhabitants as one of their own kind, obeying the homing instinct. Unlike a few tribes farther north, the Zulus do not worship the loathsome things that tolerate them, much in the same spirit that the rich of other countries do their poor relations. Of course, the multiply quickly, but many of them are harmless. However, when a bad actor comes along, the village youths soon get an end to his career. It is quite possible that after the lapse of many years customs have changed in that far off land. Nevertheless, we expect that the superstition we have discussed still walks abroad, for the black man, like his white brother, loves to linger in the darkness of the past.

The third volume of Lloyd George's memoirs, just published, has shocked many people by the terrible charges laid against some of Britain's war leaders now lying in their tombs. But the "Welsh Wizard" is not having all his own way.

Old associates of the dead men are producing documentary evidence to prove that many of the deeds now condemned by Lloyd George met his approval at the time they were committed. Some of the military blunders, some of them are asking Lloyd George the very important question:

"Why did he, as one of the 'big four' wholly responsible for the joining of the Versailles Treaty, view without protest or directly counterpoint as many cruel wrongs wrongs now stand forth in a narrative way, threatening every moment to lead troubled Europe into another biographical and self-detracting debacle?"

Of the many tales current around the depredations of grasshoppers during the past summer, this one, heard a few days ago, will take some tall thinking to outdo:

First Youth: "The hoppers were so bad on our place that they were up to a pile of fenceposts."

Second Youth: "That's nothing. One morning I went to have a drink at the well, and when I returned, the horses and cultivator were gone and the hoppers were pitching horseshoes to see who'd get the harness!"

It's milking time again, boys.

Levilose (fruit sugar), one of the three sugars now being used in confectionery and is usually the predominating one. The other two sugars are dextrose (grape sugar) and sucrose (cane sugar). Dextrose is a rapid granulating sugar. Sucrose is present in honey only in very small quantities.

The Mexican beetle, which has been kept out of Canada, with the exception of certain sections of southern Ontario, has been more abundant and widely spread than ever before during the past year in Maine and other New England and Middle Atlantic states. Canadian gardeners near the border should be on the lookout for this beetle.

Honey absorbs moisture from the air and loses aroma and its rapidity. Therefore, it should be kept in a cool, dry place, but honey in comb should be stored in a warm and dry place.

FALL WHEAT AND RYE

The total yield of fall wheat in Canada in 1934 is now estimated at 7,032,000 bushels from 425,000 acres, a yield of 16.5 bushels per acre, as compared with 14,031,000 bushels from 558,000 acres, a yield per acre of 25.1 bushels in 1933. The 1934 production of fall wheat is the lowest in the Dominion since 1902, due chiefly to winter-killing and severe drought conditions in the counties of Ontario where most of the fall wheat is grown.

The production of fall rye in Canada in 1934 is estimated at 5,239,000 bushels, an increase of 1,755,000 bushels as compared with 1933. The increase is largely due to increased acreages in the Prairie Provinces. Winter-killing of hay and clover meadows in Ontario and severe drought which has seriously affected all provinces except Quebec and British Columbia, have resulted in the lowest hay crop on record, namely 9,884,000 tons, as compared with 11,443,000 tons in 1933. The first cutting of alfalfa yielded only 778,000 tons, as compared with a first cutting of 1,134,000 tons in 1933, this large decrease being due also to the severe winter and lack of moisture.

MUST SELL BUTTER BY NET WEIGHT

Recently inspectors of the Dairy and Cold Storage Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture have been making a closer check up of the weights of prints of butter in order to ensure that the consumer is receiving full weight. This has disclosed that the legal requirements concerning the sale of butter are not being strictly adhered to by some vendors.

These regulations provide in Sub-section 3 (a) of Section 6 of Part I of the Dairy Industry Act that any butter intended for sale that has been moulded or put into prints, blocks, squares or rats must be: "of full net weight of one-quarter cuncheon pound, one pound or two pounds, but nothing in this paragraph shall be held to apply to butter in rolls or lumps, or indiscriminate weight, as sold by retailers."

The inspectors will continue the checking up Canada in order to see that consumers receive full net weight.

CANADIAN FARMERS' BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS

Farmers' Business Organizations in Canada is the title of the latest bulletin issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Since one of the purposes for which the Dominion branch of the Department was established was to study the farmers' cooperative movement, it was felt that the best way to take was the acquisition of all the information possible on the activities of such agencies in Canada. To that end arrangements were made for a survey of existing organizations.

Information was sought from all farmer-owned and controlled associations, companies, societies and clubs actively engaged in business, regardless of their methods of operation or form of organization. The information thus obtained has been summarized and will be found in the 64 pages of the bulletin. It is expected that a similar survey will be taken annually or at intervals of a few years, and that the information will form the basis for a permanent record of cooperative activities. The bulletin may be obtained on request from the Publications Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

FOUR ESSENTIALS IN HOG RAISING

The first essential in the production of suitable hogs for the market is to have sows of good bacon type, breeding, and quality, and to breed these sows to a high-class bacon-type boar. Such breeding stock will produce young pigs with a framework on which the finished select bacon hog can be built by proper care and feeding. The second essential is that young pigs must be kept growing steadily from weaning to marketing. With proper feeds and good management, select bacon pigs are ready for market when six or seven months old. Thirdly, close observation should be given pigs at all stages of development, but the most critical period in the life of the bacon hog is just before and after weaning and until the pig has reached a weight of about 70 pounds. At this stage care must be taken to make sure that the ration is properly balanced. The fourth essential is that for fall litters, direct

THE AGRICULTURAL SITUATION

Agricultural Situation again is the subject of a special report to be issued early in January, 1935. Even more complete information concerning agricultural conditions in Canada, the United States and other countries than was possible in the first report published last March will be provided. The committee, of which are officers of the Dominion Departments of Agriculture and Trade and Commerce, who are working in co-operation with representatives of the Provincial Departments of Agriculture and Agricultural Colleges, are preparing the report. This year a greater effort is being made to secure more complete details on conditions in export markets and the nature of the composition which may be expected from other countries. The committee will submit the conclusions from the information they obtain at a conference to be held at the end of November at which it is expected representatives of the different provinces will be present. The work this year as last, is being carried on under the direction of a committee appointed by the National Advisory Committee on Agricultural Statistics.

THE CHEESE SMUGGLERS

The inauguration of National Cheese Week in Canada, to be held from November 10th to 17th in order to create the greater consumption of the finest cheese in the world, calls attention to the fact that, while the subject of cheese may have been considered Canadian somewhat indifferent, it is evidently anxious in other nationalities a desire to battle for their own special variety of that commodity. The idea that the smuggling of cheese could ever figure as a dangerous and exciting undertaking may well bring a smile to the face of the Canadian who is surrounded by the pick of the world's milk-making, but what kind of smuggling goes on along the coast of the glorious Riviera? It is not the smuggling of almonds for pearls or rubies to decorate the international bounties who throng that glorious strip of southern France, neither is it for other contraband goods. It is cheese, just good, plain Italian cheese. But the Italians, it seems, are patriotic. The thousands of Italians in Nice and elsewhere demand Italian cheese, although they have at hand nearly 40 different varieties of French cheese. There is a duty in France on foreign cheese, and consequently the French and Italian customs officials have to cope with a number of professional cheese smugglers. For instance, they made a clever capture recently at the border of the St. Louis bridge frontier. The roof of a tradesman's van looked rather bulky. The officials on the French side of the frontier saw the sniffing and tapping, took a measurement or two, prised up a few strips of panelling, and found 370 pounds of fat cheese snugly stored away. On another occasion there was no necessity for far outing. A boatload of Gorgonzola, much on sale, declared itself and was captured off Cap Martin by the Monaco customs. On still another occasion there was an exciting pursuit and capture of a small motor-yacht which brought a ton of cheese from Italy to the rocky Isles of Cannes. The agents of the gendarmes paid a $3,000 fine and were released. Later on, another boatload of cheese was captured at sea but as the smugglers managed to escape they have transferred their activities to the mountains on the French-Italian frontier.

Almost every shipment of eggs to Scotland, with the exception of some continental countries, has adopted the style of package used by Canada, namely 30 dozen cases with sections.

Cuban baking methods require the use of a flour with a high content of fine-quality gluten. Flour mill from Canadian wheat satisfies this requirement, and consequently 75 per cent of the imports are of flour made from Canadian wheat.

The human flea is reported for the first time in the province of Quebec. The only other records of this species in Canada are by the Entomological Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, are from isolated localities in Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan, and British Columbia.

Bright Stories about Wine
BEFORE THE BEGINNING OF MAN
● Perhaps the extravagant claims that have been put forward from time to time by distillers for the age of their whiskies are founded on the fact that the origin of making wine is lost in the mists of antiquity. One can only guess at the acorns that may have elapsed between the time the grape was grown, and its real purpose on earth discovered. The vine is known to have existed in the tertiary period, and since that time has survived all great natural catastrophes and upheavals.
● Those of us who believe in a great plan or purpose into which the puny, temporal affairs of man are divinely fitted must see a significance in this fact. Whatever else was permitted to perish, the vine was not. The fossil remains of the vine which have been excavated show a shrub with many large leaves, and grapes in small irregular clusters which must have been vicious and acid to the taste.
● The improvement of the vine came probably by accident. A branch would have been broken off, and it would be noticed that the fruit that followed was better than before. Thus was the art of pruning born.
● That the vine, the grape and the purpose of the grape were known long before the beginning of written history is proved from the fact that the first reference we have to them is to be found in Genesis IX, 20, 21. It reads: "And Noah began to be a husbandman, and he planted a vineyard. . . And he drank of the wine and was drunken." Evidently the discovery of fermentation had been made long before Noah's lapse, which, however, as the context will show, was responsible for our presence on earth to-day.
● The Persians have a legend which is as near the truth as we are ever likely to arrive. It tells of the great Jamshed who had been accustomed to grape juice when freshly expressed. He thought it would be a fine idea to gather quite a stock of it to tide him over the winter when the vine was not in the bearing. So he collected a quantity of grape juice and stored it in jars. One day, a few weeks later, he took a considerable slug and was almost immediately conscious of strange and painful proceedings in his stomach. The wine, in fact, was in process of fermentation and was foul and nauseous.
● Why he didn't empty the jars, we do not know. It was lucky he didn't. He merely labelled them "Poison." Then a few weeks later one of his wives fell despondent and, seeing the convenient poison, took a copious draught. She was surprised. She took another and another, but her troubles seemed to have miraculously disappeared. She hurried to the king with the glad tidings; and so was discovered, the old chroniclers tell us, the great law of fermentation.
